

WEEK 1

MANAGING EMOTIONS IN TIMES OF UNCERTAINTY AND STRESS

ACTION PLANNING PITSTOP

After reviewing the Week 1 content, take a few moments to consider how you can apply these concepts to your life—in and out of school.

Use the questions below to guide you. Please note that this document can be printed and filled out on paper or downloaded as a fillable PDF form.

RETHINKING UNPLEASANT EMOTIONS

One of the key messages we've explored is that there's no such thing as a bad emotion. All emotions are information and can support us in achieving our goals. Still, many of us consider some of the emotions we experience as bad.

Take a moment and think about the emotions in your life that you have considered "negative" or bad—the ones you usually push aside, ignore, try to suppress, or hope will go away.

Now ask yourself: is there another way to see these emotions? What kind of information are they providing you? When used wisely, how might these emotions serve you or the students in your school?

If filling this section out digitally, please click the empty box below to start typing.

LEVERAGING EMOTIONS IN DAILY LIFE

Emotions are information. When we understand what they are telling us, they can be extremely useful. Describe how your emotions have helped or hindered you or your students in each of the areas below. Consider specific emotions and specific situations where this has happened.

Attention, memory, learning ◆ Decision making ◆ Relationships
Physical and mental health ◆ Creativity and performance

SHARE THE POWER OF EMOTIONS WITH OTHERS

What is one takeaway about the power of emotions that you could share with others?

If filling this section out digitally, please click the empty box below to start typing.

ADDITIONAL NOTES

If filling this section out digitally, please click the empty box below to start typing.